

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

To the Daffodils.

Dainty yellow daffodils,
In the sunshine tender,
How you bow and bend and sway
On your long stems slender,
Such a group of daffodils
Eighteen—ninety-two!
Though the world be never so poor
You have gold in plenty.

Round you close in serried ranks
Like a threatening army,
Band your sword-bayonets bristling fierce,
Really, they alarm me.

Tell me how you came to wake,
From your winter's slumber;
Down within the earth so dark,
How the months you number.

Did you hear the blue bird's note,
Calling blithely to you?
Did the South-wind whisper low
He had come to woo you?

Was it plash of April rain
Roused you to your duty?
Did the sun-god play the part
Of "Prince" to "Sleeping Beauty"?

Saucy, yellow daffodils,
Bowing, bending, swaying,
Not a bit of heed you give,
To a word I'm saying.

Well, however it was you came,
To herald lover's "ring-time,"
This I know—we hold you dear
And welcome as the spring-time.
—Evelyn M. Quereau.

Governor Entertains.

Governor Swanson gave another in the series of elegant dinner parties at which members of the Virginia Senate and House have been entertained by him in the executive mansion.

Twenty covers were laid last evening, and among those present were Messrs. William H. Mann, Martin Williams, J. D. Williams and Jack Marlen; Messrs. Read, Gill, Wallace, Pitts, Pullen, Peyton, Harman, Powell, Burton, Jennings, Cox, Baker, Wickham and Owens.

All the dining room decorations were in pink, a great plaque of pink carnations and mignonette in the middle of the table being veiled in delicate pink gauze ribbon. The grape fruit was tied with the pink gauze and the loaves were prettily molded in pink carnations.

With and the spirit of comradeship ruled the hour, the Governor leading in social conviviality and pleasant intercourse. He will again be a dinner host to-night, when twenty of his friends among the senators and delegates will be entertained by him.

THE SOWER'S SONG

By THOMAS CARLYLE.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

NOW hands to seed-sheet, boys!
We step and we cast; old Time's on wing;
And would ye partake of Harvest's joys,
The corn must be sown in spring.
Fall gently and still, good corn,
Lie warm in thy earthly bed;
And stand so yellow some morn,
For beast and man must be fed.

Old earth is a pleasure to see
In sunshiny cloak of red and green;
The furrow lies fresh, this year will be
As years that are past have been.
Fall gently and still, good corn,
Lie warm in thy earthly bed;
And stand so yellow some morn,
For beast and man must be fed.

Old earth, receive this corn,
The son of six thousand golden sires;
All these on thy kindly breast were born;
One more thy poor child requires.
Fall gently and still, good corn,
Lie warm in thy earthly bed;
And stand so yellow some morn,
For beast and man must be fed.

Now steady and sure again,
And measure of stroke and step we keep;
Thus up and down we cast our grain;
Sow well and you gladly reap.
Fall gently and still, good corn,
Lie warm in thy earthly bed;
And stand so yellow some morn,
For beast and man must be fed.

MAN WITH SWALLPOX WALKS TO THE STATION

Police Lose Little Time in Having Him Hustled to the Pest-House.

Just as Patrolman Haddon Amos walked out of the Second Police Station yesterday morning, he spotted a negro broken out with swall-pox headed up the street toward the police station.

"Heh, you, get back there and stand still," said the officer.

The negro stopped some ten feet from the officer, and at that distance said he had come here from Newport News to get treatment. He thought he had the small pox, he said, and had heard that in Richmond there was a pest-house.

"Oh, Lord," was all that Sergeant Sowell, who was on duty at the station at the time, said when he heard the man's remarks.

The wagon was sent for and the negro taken to the pesthouse.

Supreme Court of Appeals Decides in Favor of Bickford.

PRISON FOR SATTERFIELD

Judge Whittle Upholds Lynchburg Court—Only Two Opinions Handed Down.

The Supreme Court of Appeals handed down two opinions yesterday, both of which, however, were of general interest.

In the Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric Company vs. Bickford, Judge Harrison handed down an opinion affirming the judgment of the Circuit Court of Elizabeth City county.

The case originated in a motion for judgment by the electric company, which operates a railway into Buckroe Beach, against Bickford, on an open account growing out of the lease of hotel premises at that resort. Bickford pleaded eviction from the leased premises and also filed other pleas setting forth in detail, as the opinion says, the most flagrant acts by the electric company of trespass upon the leased premises and violation of Bickford's rights, whereby his business was broken up and destroyed, and the damage thus sustained was pleaded as an offset to the company's demand.

As to the other case, the judgment against the electric company for $123.38. The Supreme Court holds that the contention that Bickford's claim for damages was res adjudicata is not well founded, as of two suits, in which it is stated that the claim had been settled, one was for specific performance of the contract for renewal of the lease, and was terminated before the acts here complained of were committed, and the other was a bill for an injunction enjoining the placing of guards by the company at the gates to the fence around the leased property and interfering with defendant's management of the premises, which was dissolved on the ground that those matters were then under the control of the United States court.

Other errors suggested in a brief on behalf of plaintiff in error filed after the brief of defendant in error was filed, it is said, cannot be considered under the ruling of the court.

Satterfield Case.

In the case of Satterfield vs. the Commonwealth, from the Corporation Court of Lynchburg, the Supreme Court of Appeals refused to grant a new trial.

The indictment under which Satterfield was convicted was for petit larceny, charging also that he had been twice before sentenced in the United States for the like offense. In regard to the assignment of error to the refusal of the lower court to sustain the demurrer to the indictment, Judge Whittle, writing the opinion of the Supreme Court, says that it is not necessary that a warrant for petit larceny charge the felonious taking of the property alleged to have been stolen; and that the charge that the accused did unlawfully take, steal and carry away the property of another discharges the offense under a mere trespass, and stamps it as petit larceny. The warrants set forth in the indictment as those under which Satterfield had been formerly sentenced for petit larceny are therefore held to sufficiently charge that offense.

The fact that the accused was fined for the second offense instead of being punished in accordance with the statute prescribing the penalty for a second conviction, is said not to affect the sufficiency of the indictment as to the felony of the indictment and for a third offense, because the procedure under the statute providing punishment for the second offense is not intended to be exclusive, but leaves unimpaired the authority of the Commonwealth to prosecute and punish an offender independently for successive offenses of petit larceny.

It is further held that it was not necessary to allege that previous convictions of the accused was by a court of competent jurisdiction, because the charter of the city of Danville conferred jurisdiction upon the mayor of that city in such cases, and the courts will take judicial notice of such a city charter and its jurisdiction it confers without averment or proof. Therefore, it is said, the demurrer was properly overruled.

The statute under which Satterfield was tried and convicted in this case provides that "where a person is convicted of petit larceny, and it is alleged in the indictment on which he is convicted, and admitted, or by the jury or justice before whom he is tried, found, that he has been before sentenced in the United States for the like offense," he shall be

THIRD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH'S NEW PROPERTY

A deal was closed Wednesday in which the Church Hill lot occupied by Smith's dry goods store, on East Broad Street, was bought for $2,500 from C. D. Larus, and becomes the property of the Third Presbyterian Church.

This church, of which the Rev. Dr. R. B. Eggleston is pastor, has become so large in membership and activity that the present house of worship is entirely inadequate; and the elders at a recent meeting decided to buy the adjoining lots, so that the building may be enlarged to suit the needs of the congregation.

The lot has a frontage of twenty-two feet, and work will be begun in a short time.
